

No equipment? No problem. Let's talk soil.

"I've got a great custom guy that no-tills for me. We saw the results when it got really hot this summer and the crops kept going. Cover crops really give the soil a heart."

Farming: Organic chickens.

Soil story: This is the family farm – we've lived here for twenty years. We used to plow everything.

For us, it's about giving the consumers what they want. In 2012, we transitioned our chickens to organic and have had a lot of success with that. So I want to transition the fields for the organic premiums as well, but the soil needs to be in good enough shape before I do that.

Advice? There are lots of people who want to help. If you want to ask, come on over and I'll tell you what we're doing.
