CIVICS POINTERS ON WEEVIL FIGHT

George Man Tells Globes How to Fight Weevil Says Very Tale Grows in Tallies After Ceiling Average in Hall.

A Mann Globes, president of the South Carolina Antislavery Traded Association, and a member of the board of directors of the Anti-Ball Weevil association of South Carolina has received a letter from Thomas Corbin, manager of a large corporation, who says he is selling the effect of the ball weevil in cotton. The letter is a re-quest that the globes must seek the weevil.

"Now," said Corbin, "the weevil is a pest." He said it was a pest of cotton in spite of it.

"As sales man," Corbin said, "the writer is vitally interested in cotton, for two years, together with his own, he has been studying the experience of men who are authorities."

Corbin's important suggestion was, "Don't get cold feet keep up confidence, don't among the planters, but among merchants, and the banks. Don't let them know you are afraid. Don't get scared and burn your money but extend credit more intelligently. It is well to always remember that cotton is being successfully grown in Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and Tennessee, where there are no more weevils." Then the Carolinas will have far more cotton to come.

"Keep politics out of my fight," said Corbin, "because I have no object save the boasting of some man or cause."

The planter of each section should get together and work in harmony under the advice of their state agricultural men, and under the guidance of our agricultural colleges, who would always have practical men to advise us.

"The worst thing about the weevil is its habit of spreading false reports of a supposed damage done. The lie always grows in the telling. Keep a stiff upper lip, and you will win the fight."

"Summed up all the successful

First of all, it is to reduce to the minimum the cost of the work. The method of start is to make as much corn as possible in the first actual acreage. The cost of fighting the weevil on one acre is just twice that on one acre covered by the first crop.

"Second," and under attack deeply before the first frost, its weevil will not be able to get down to a small amount of cotton to do this. Get your neighbors to do this also. One man alone in each section can't do it all.

"Third," plant as far as possible from fields of year before, clean ditch rows, destroy old fence rows, and burn old fence rows. Plant around your fields especially old trees with old near fields.

"Fourth," Get land in best possible shape for the first crop and beds. Fertilize twice as heavily as before on half the land, and use lots of soluble phosphoric acid and potash. Polished seed, and use of insect and toughers and makes more resisting the boll. Phosphoric hastens fruiting. Cultivate more often.

"Fifth," Use improved time and labor saving machinery, which enables more frequent and rapid cultivation.

"Sixth," Pick weevils and barn swallows, and use poison early. Poison when properly applied.

"Seventh," Build row covers around plant close in row and plants, that is, plant more cotton per acre.

"Eighth," Plant food crop on acres where weevils have let cotton be the surplus crop.

"An analysis of the above, clearly shows that simple, intelligent farming is the only way to success in being done every season. Ever, wherever after the scarce outbreak the states now begin getting back to normal.

The weevil does damage, but as does the sparrow, worm, potato bug, and the grasshopper. It is up to the individual to use his brain, cooperate and avail himself of the experience of those through his neighbors.

Los Angeles, Dec. 29.—Counsel for Harry S. New, on trial on a charge of murdering his fiancée, Freda Lesser, concluded today the reading of depositions of persons who had known New in the Middle West in an effort to establish the theory that New is innocent.

Many friends in Chester learned with sorrow of the death of Mr. Matthew Gilmore, of Richmond, Va., which occurred a few days ago. Mr. Gilmore was the father of Rev. A. D. P. Gilmore, who was pastor of Purdy's Presbyterian church, for several years, and who is now at Spartanburg. Mr. Matthew Gilmore visited Chester and made many friends during his stay. A Richmond dispatch dated December 27th says: Victim of pneumonia, supposed to have been superinduced by injuries suffered in an automobile accident. Matthew Gilmore, retired tobacco exporter, 84 years old, native of Scotland and father of the Rev. A. D. P. Gilmore, Presbyterian pastor of Spartanburg, S. C., died at his home here Christmas Eve."

On Thursday, Dec. 18th, there was solemnized at the Presbyterian manse at Greenwood, by Rev. J. B. Green, a marriage of unique interest to their friends, when Miss Margaret Wills, of Edgemoor, became the bride of John C. Todd, of Due West. The marriage was a very quiet affair and came as a complete surprise to their many friends. Miss Wills has been for a number of years a student of the Woman's college of Due West. Mr. Todd is a senior at Furman university, where he is held in high esteem by the faculty and student body. He has starred for some seasons on the football team—Rock Hill Herald.

During the dance last week, our number who attended, wearing overcoats, mufflers and fancy hats, came away contented and happy. It was indeed a treat today. It was thought at first that some of the articles were taken by error, but no articles were left over, as would have been the case had the wrong garment been picked up. It is thought that in a number of cases persons took overcoats being under the impression they were one to the ball, whereas they did not. In other instances, the indications are that the articles were taken intentionally and it is understood, detectives have been secured to ferret the matter out. In the case where articles were taken by mistake, it is thought they will be returned to the rightful owner within a day or so, as each of the latter can be located.—Rock Hill Herald.

WHAT WOOD ALCOHOL WILL DO TO VICTIM

Boston, Dec. 27.—The effect upon the human system of methyl (wood) alcohol, which has caused the death in New England within two days of more than 50 persons, was described today by Dr. Wm. Woodward, city health commissioner, as a poison which it is very difficult to combat.

Dr. Woodward said: "Its debilitating effect is quickly followed by vertigo, nausea, vomiting, headache, dilated pupils, delirium, persistent coma and death."

Dr. Woodward said: "If recovery takes place, there is danger of more or less blindness due to atrophy of the optic nerve."

"Blindness has followed the taking of five teaspoonfuls of methyl (wood) alcohol. To some less than one-half a pint has proved fatal. Death may occur in a few hours or it may be delayed for two days."

"In treating, a syphon tube is used and the contents of the stomach diluted with warm water and the stomach emptied. Alternations of hot and cold water effusions may help the case."

PROSECUTION TO COME

Profiteering in Sugar Will Be Punished.

New York, Dec. 27.—Wholesale prosecutions for profiteering in sugar were predicted today by Arthur Williams, federal food administrator. Evidence will be forthcoming when the shortage is relieved, he expects.

"Wholesale and retail dealers and restaurants had been 'mercilessly gouged,'" he said, because they had to have sugar at any price. At present they are afraid to divulge information for fear of having their supply cut off.

STRICT RULES MADE TO KEEP WHISKY OUT OF VESSEL

Liquors properly carried may be returned to a foreign port on the return of the vessel from the foreign port to the coasting trade, or may be transferred under supervision of the customs officers from a vessel in foreign trade to a vessel in port for any cause to another vessel of the same line or wharve.

Washington, Dec. 27.—Stringent regulations were issued today by the treasury to prevent intoxicants from entering the country from ships arriving from foreign ports.

Liquors promptly listed as sea stores must be placed under seal by the boarding officer, of the customs service, and kept sealed during the entire time of the vessel's stay in port. No part of such stores may be removed from under seal for any purpose while the ship is in United States waters, the regulations state, which denies to foreign crews the option of wine served with meals on some ships under other flags.

Excessive liquor stores, no longer being desirable, are subject to seizure.

Liquors properly carried may be returned to a foreign port on the return of the vessel from the foreign port to the coasting trade, or may be transferred under supervision of the customs officers from a vessel in foreign trade to a vessel in port for any cause to another vessel of the same line or wharve.

Customs officials are not greatly concerned over the possibility of smuggling large stores of liquor into the country, and the new orders are believed to close the last hole through which intoxicants might reach domestic consumers. With all liquid refreshments under seal, it was said there would be small opportunity for "bootlegging" to be carried on around the wharves.

A Place of Distinction for the Cleveland Six

America has given welcome, in its mistakeable term, to the new Cleveland Six. This car, sensation of the year in the world of motordom, found a place waiting for it, a place of distinction.

Indeed, it establishes its own place. For there has been no other light car of similar quality at similar price. There is no other now. The Cleveland Six, product of men skilled in the design and building of fine cars, reflects in every detail the genius and sincerity of its maker. Underneath its beautiful body is a chassis which performs. It doesn't merely run. It's alive with power and speed.

The Cleveland Six is offered now in two open styles of unusual comfort, splendid design and excellent finish—the five-passenger touring car and three-passenger roadster. The two handsome Cleveland closed cars, five-passenger sedan and four-passenger coupe, will soon be ready for delivery.

THE GARDEN OF EDEN AS IT IS TODAY

"And the Lord God planted a garden in the eastward, of Eden. And a river went out of Eden to water the garden; and it was parted into four heads."—Genesis ii. 8-10.

St. William Wilkie, who, in behalf of the British Government had charge of the wonderful irrigation works in Egypt, was assigned with him ago to the duty of planning a similar large-scale enterprise for the restoration of ancient Babylonia to its former agricultural productivity.

"This it happened that he located, to the reasonable satisfaction of the engineers, the veritable site of the Garden of Eden. For reasons wholly practical he thought that the best way to begin.

Starting from the spot where Jewish tradition placed the Gates of Paradise, the world-paradise meaning "garden"—he followed the traces of the four streams mentioned in Genesis ii. 10, as their names were the Pison, the Gihon, the Hiddekel and the Euphrates."

The Euphrates, known by that name today, flowed through the great city of Babylon. The Gihon is now called the Hindu. The Hiddekel is the modern Tigris. The Euphrates, which flows into the Persian Gulf, has gone dry, but is respected by many as a holy river, and is the source of the "river of life" (see Genesis) to the whole Arab world.

Along the valley garden succeeds garden. It is today a veritable paradise, orchards and date groves checked with fields of cotton. The climate is so inviting that, in that three or four years may be grown.

Amazingly the cactuses were much higher, and water-sheds were unnecessary, the water being led off by ditches.

The Garden of Eden, indeed, gains interest from the fact that it seems to have been the first irrigated area in the world.

Labor Is Learning By Experience

The fact of immediate importance in connection with the great bituminous-coal strike is that the men are to return to the mines at once. But the fact of even greater importance in the long calculation is that they return on terms which they could have had at the start and which they now accept from the President after definitely rejecting them two weeks ago when, under the able executive officers of the Government.

This means for the striking miners an experience in great self-reliance and independence of action. It means that they are to be tested in the long run by the public sympathy, which is not likely to be lost either upon themselves or upon all other union labor.

Strikes undertaken hastily and without adequate cause in non-essential industries react injuriously in their consequences upon organized labor as a whole, none the less, and slowly and unimpairedly. They may seem to help the so-called solidarity of labor and to promote "class consciousness." But strikes in essential industries like coal-mining strike at the well-being of all labor, as well as of the whole community, instantly sink by losses of work and wages, that can never be recovered, whatever may be the ultimate gains to the strikers. While the miners' howl goes back to work in this case, hundreds of thousands of fellow wage-earners have been thrown out of work or put on short time and must continue so for many days to come.

This is not teaching for but against labor's solidarity. This is not teaching for but against "class consciousness." It is teaching of community solidarity as the essential condition of labor's well-being. It is a teaching of community consciousness as against all forms of classism. No class of labor can hope to serve the country into submission to any demands they may choose to make, because their own class must be among the first to starve. By the same token no class of labor can hope to freeze the country into submission.

This great lesson of the coal strike is clear. There is reason to think that it will sink deep into the councils of all labor-unionism.—New York World.

Work more—
Produce more—
Save more—

But we can't continue increasing our production unless we continue increasing our railroad facilities.

The farms, mines and factories cannot increase their output beyond the capacity of the railroads to haul their products.

Railroads are now near the peak of their carrying capacity.

Without railroad expansion—more engines, more cars, more tracks, more terminals—there can be little increase in production.

But this country of ours is going to keep right on growing—and the railroads must grow with it.

To command in the investment markets the flow of new capital to expand railroad facilities—and so increase production—there must be public confidence in the future earning power of railroads.

The nation's business can grow only as fast as the railroads grow.

This advertisement is published by the Association of Railway Executives

These findings concerning the railroad situation may assist legislators by setting in the minds of the public the importance of the railroad situation.
